

The Human Person & Evolution

Open your Bibles and read Genesis 1 & 2.

Consider these questions as you read the passage:

What is the human person according to Genesis 1? What makes the human creature unique out of the whole of God's creation?

What duties does God give the human family in Genesis 1?

What duties does God give the human family in Genesis 2?

What do these duties suggest about the role the human family is meant to play in creation (Try to think on a theological or religious level here)?

What does this role tell us about the purpose of creation as a whole and the human creature specifically (Again, try to think on a theological or religious level here)?

Are what Genesis 1 & 2 teach us about the human person compatible with theories like the big bang and biological evolution? Why or why not?
